Examples include:

- Using GDI intellectual property, information or resources (including computers) for personal gain;
- Theft or misuse of GDI assets, equipment or facilities;

- Not disclosing conflicts of interest; or
- Improper conduct in procurement and/or contract management processes.

5. Policy

5.1 Reporting Fraud, Bribery or Corruption

Individuals who become aware of potential fraudulent and/or corrupt behaviours should report these inappropriate behaviours as soon as possible to the Company Secretary (CS) and/or through existing internal issue resolution and reporting channels. Where a manager received a report they must inform the Company Secretary.

If any employee does not feel able to use the existing reporting channels due to the nature and/or seriousness of the inappropriate behaviour, then they may raise the matter directly with any member of the GDI Board.

GDI promotes a culture that expects and encourages the reporting of improper conduct including fraud, bribery and corruption and is committed to protecting people who disclose reasonably suspected mismanagement, corruption, illegality or some other wrongdoing occurring at GDI. Refer also to the Whistleblower policy.

5.2 Prevention of Fraud, Bribery and Corruption

GDI will not tolerate dishonest, fraudulent or corrupt behaviour and is committed to preventing this behaviour, and encouraging an ethical culture in general, in the performance of its business operations.

As part of the GDI risk management framework and related governance processes GDI has established initiatives focused on the prevention, detection, investigation and reporting of suspected fraud against GDI. These initiatives include audits, staff training about how to recognise and deal with any instance of fraud, bribery or corruption, risk assessments, robust internal controls and appointment screenings.

5.3 Investigation and management of reports of Fraud, Bribery and Corruption

The Company Secretary will determine the most appropriate approach for any investigation process. Employees and Managers must not initiate their own investigation.

All reports of suspected fraudulent activity will be dealt with having regard to applicable laws such as privacy, confidentiality, legal professional privilege and any requirements of natural justice.

Investigations into suspected fraudulent activity will be undertaken on the assumption of the innocence of the person implicated. All reports of improper conduct will be thoroughly investigated with the objective of locating evidence that either substantiates or refutes the claims made.

The rules of natural justice are to be observed in any investigation arising out of a report. The investigation will be conducted without bias and the person against whom the allegation is made should be given the right to respond.

Where it is found that an employee has knowingly or recklessly made a false report of fraud, bribery or corruption that conduct itself will be considered a serious matter and render the person concerned subject to disciplinary proceedings as provided by the Code of Conduct.

5.4 Consequences of committing Fraud, Bribery or Corruption

Incidents of fraud, bribery or corruption, are viewed very seriously by GDI.

GDI will decide whether or not to bring civil proceedings, refer for criminal prosecution or take disciplinary action, or a combination of these actions. Where appropriate, GDI will vigorously pursue the recovery of money or property lost through fraud, bribery or corruption.

It is unacceptable to accept any gift when it can be perceived that the person or organisation offering the gift may derive a benefit if the gift is accepted. Such benefits include favourable treatment or the allocation of more work for particular suppliers.

It is acknowledged that GDI employees will be offered gifts and entertainment in the ordinary course of business, including:

- business lunches, dinners and other forms of entertainment;
- Christmas gifts; and
- Post transaction or other celebrations.

Such gifts and entertainment should not be so lavish or excessive as to operate (or imply to operate) as an inducement to do business or imply an attempt to influence a business decision.

Gifts of cash are prohibited and offers of cash are to be reported to the Company Secretary immediately. All gifts, benefits or entertainment offered during a tender process (or the like) must be declined. Travel and accommodation in respect of proposed entertainment is generally not allowed, other than in limited circumstances where the prior approval of the Company Secretary has been received.

If any employee accepts a gift other than in accordance with this policy they will be subject to disciplinary action.

5.7 Facilitation payments

Facilitation payments are minor payments made for the purpose of expediting or securing the performance of a routine government action (e.g. processing government papers such as visa, delivery of mail, providing communication services). GDI prohibits payment of facilitation payments (in Australia and in any foreign jurisdiction) regardless of whether such payments are permitted in a given jurisdiction. Any request by a third party for such a payment is to be immediately referred to GDI's Company Secretary.
